Naval Changes.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Pay Director John Cunningham has been ordered to duty as purchasing paymaster at San Francisco, in place of Pay Director Edward C. Doran, detached and ordered to the navy yard at Mare Island. Pay Inspector Casper Schenck has been detached from certain duty at Mare Island navy yard, but ordered to remain on duty there as inspector of provisions and clothing at that yard.

The Jumel Will Case.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The following decision was rendered by the Supreme Court to-day in Bowen vs. Chase, et al.; appeal from the circuit court for the southern district of New York. This was a suit in equity, brought by Nelson Chase and others against George W. Bowen, having for its principal objects the establishing of their title to certain lands in New York city, known as the Jumel property, and to enjoin Bowen from prosecuting certain actions of ejectment, one of which was to recover the property named, and others to recover lands in Saratoga belonging to the same estate. The court held that the conveyance to Kingsland and Martin, for value, by Madame Jumel, after her voluntary appointment in favor of her adopted daughter, Mrs. Chase, were valid, being made under her original power of appointment, but that the appointments to Hamilton and Phillipson are ineffective. The decision is that the appelle and heir are not entitled to have the real estate of which Madame Jumel died seized appropriated to them in satisfaction of supposed frauds upon the rights of Mrs. Chase in Kingsland and Martin conveyances, nothing appearing to show that such frauds were intended or consummated; but that, in view of the void conveyances to Hamilton and Phillipson, and of the fact that Madame Jumel remained in undisputed possession of the property up to the time of her death, they were entirely justified in coming into a court of equity to have them declared void. The decree is reversed as to the effect of the conveyances to Kingsland and Martin, and affirmed as to those to Hamilton and Phillipson, including a perpetual injunction against Bowen, prohibiting him from prosecuting any action or suit for the recovery of the particular estate embraced in the appointment made in favor of Mrs. Chase by the deed of 1828. The claim of the appelle to recover of Bowen $2,500, alleged to have been obtained by him from one of Chase's grantees by way of compromise, is left to be utterly groundless.

Withdrawal of the Troops.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The following letter has been sent to Major General Hancock by General Sherman:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY U. S., WASHINGTON, April 5th.

MAJOR GENERAL W. S. HANCOCK, commanding the military division of the Atlantic, New York—General: I now have the honor to enclose you certified copies of a letter from the Hon. Secretary of War, of the 3d of April, and of the President of the United States, of the same date, ordering the withdrawal of the troops of the United States from the State house at Columbia, S. C., on Tuesday next, at 12 M. Please cause this order to be executed precisely at the time and in the manner described in said letters, and report the fact promptly to these headquarters.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant,
W. T. SHERMAN, General.

The Naval Finances.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The Secretary of the Navy, prior to his departure for Terra Haute last evening, issued the following circular:

NAVY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., April 5, 1877.

The Secretary of the Navy regrets that it has become his duty to announce to officers in the naval service that the amount of money found by him in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the appropriation for the pay of the navy, is insufficient to pay the officers for the months of April, May and June. The Secretary proposes to retain as much as necessary of what there is in the Treasury under the appropriation for pay of the navy, for the purpose of paying allotments to the wives of officers and sailors therein, whose husbands are abroad in the service of their country, and provide for them; and in this purpose the Secretary feels he will be sustained by every high minded officer in the navy of the United States.

(Signed) R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y Navy.

The deficiency required about three quarters of a million. The temporary clerks in the Navy Department will be discharged at the end of the present month.

Robeson Vindicated.

CHICAGO, April 5.—The Journal's Washington special says: The Secretary of the Navy last night expressed his utter disbelief in the alleged dishonesty and malfeasance of ex-Secretary Robeson, and said the money complained of as misused was not diverted from one bureau to another, because the law did not divide it up among several bureaus but provided that it be expended by the navy department proper, not by any particular bureau. Moreover, there are several hundred thousand dollars on hand. Secretary Thompson is indignant at the use of his name made by the originators of the story.

Civil Service Rule.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Secretary Schurz has promulgated an order providing for the investigation and determination of questions connected with appointments, removals and promotions in the various departments by means a board of inquiry, comprehending three members—one to represent the Secretary's office and appointed by the Secretary, one to be selected from such bureaux as the Secretary may indicate and named by the head thereof, and the third to be designated by the head of the bureau from which the charges or recommendation emanates. The two first named are to serve three months and the latter for the session. When a reduction is necessary in any bureau, a list of the names 25 per cent. in excess of the actual number to be dismissed shall be furnished to the Secretary, and the required number shall be selected from this list by the board. It is provided, however, that the result of the board's inquiries shall in every case be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior for approval.

Federal Appointments.

John S. Hoyt, of Michigan, has been appointed Governor of Territory of Arizona, and John H. Hammond, of Illinois, Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Central Superintendency.

The Cabinet, in session to-day, considered contemplated appointments.

Obscene Publications.

LONDON, April 6.—Charles Bradlaugh and Mrs. Annie Bessant have been arrested on a charge of issuing immoral publications. Bradlaugh's offense is the publication of a pamphlet by the late Dr. Charles Knowlton, dealing with the Malthusian theory. The case was adjourned to allow time to prepare the defense, and deceased released on bail.

Troubles in Egypt.

CAIRO, April 4.—Peace has not yet been concluded between Abyssinia and Egypt, but probably will be because the troops of Shoah has captured Gen. Dar, and the Abyssinian army has in consequence been withdrawn from the Egyptian frontier. The projected treaty will cede no territory to Abyssinia, but will provide for a reduction of Egyptian export duties.

Bismarck's Talent Needed.

A Berlin correspondent refers to an article in the Berlin Post on the subject of Bismarck's application for a furlough, by whom it is considered to have been inspired. This article concludes: We believe the Empire will still have to stand the severest test, and that hour of trial may be nearer than is generally supposed. It is Bismarck's duty to spare himself for that hour.

Wants a Pension.

BERLIN, April 4.—The Kreutz Zeitung states positively that Bismarck insisted on being put on the pension list, which is equivalent to total resignation.

Bismarck's Resignation.

The Times' Berlin special, discussing Prince Bismarck's resignation, says: His motive was probably complex. His health is by no means good, and his influence on Prussian domestic affairs very limited owing to the traditional independence of each cabinet minister, while the concentration of affairs in the hands of the Imperial administration is impeded not only by the resistance of the minor governments but also by opposition proceeding from the chiefs of the various Prussian departments. As was concluded from Prince Bismarck's language on the occasion of the Von Stosch affair made a deep impression upon him. Von Stosch is a German, not a Prussian minister, and as Prince Bismarck has always endeavored to break the Prussian traditions in the organization of the German bureau and to assign the chiefs of German departments to strictly subordinate positions under absolute control of the Chancellor General, Von Stosch's independent bearing must have appeared like an attempt to transfer the deprecated Prussian system to German institutions. Whether the Prince's withdrawal was directly occasioned by his affair or not, there is little doubt that it is indirectly occasioned by his unwillingness to endure official burdens greater than his health could well support.

The Times in a leading article, after commenting on Prince Bismarck's well known difficulties relative to internal affairs, says it cannot be overlooked that Prince Bismarck's retirement is simultaneous with the acceptance of the protocol. Prince Bismarck's power naturally prompts men to connect his retirement with the greatest event in contemporary history.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Now Peace May Come.

LONDON, April 4.—A Berlin correspondent of the Times says the chief obstacle to the conclusion of peace between Montenegro and Turkey is removed. Russia advised Montenegro to renounce her demand for Nicsic and content herself with the cession of Kanezia or Koloschli. The Porte, in recognition of this advance, sends Reouf Pasha as a special ambassador to St. Petersburg, to try and remove any further difficulties. The protocol only records those demands of the conference which had not been previously rejected by the Porte, and the dispatch of Reouf Pasha to St. Petersburg is regarded almost as a guarantee of arrangement. It is certain that Montenegrins will make no difficulties if Russia is willing to come to terms.

Criminals Released.

LONDON, April 4.—The Times' special from Pera states that the Porte has released Toxon Bey and his accomplices, charged with the destruction of the town of Klisour during the Bulgarian atrocities.

Protocol Delivered.

A Pera dispatch to the Daily Telegraph announces that all the charge d'affairs except Germany, yesterday delivered the protocol to the Porte. Montenegrins in Constantinople express anxiety to conclude peace, even without receiving Nicsic.

The Sick Man in Danger.

LONDON, April 4.—The Times' Belgrade special notices the disposal of foreign officers who were recently in the Servian service in Russia, Greece, Bosnia, Persia and other countries hostile to Turkey, and says it is stated 160 of the Russian Red Cross cavalry arrived at Jassy and are arranging hospitals there. Indications on the political horizon suggest that while diplomatists are quibbling over the meaning of words, events are drawing a cordon around Turkey which may soon furnish a surprising spectacle to Europe.

Still More Difficulties.

VIENNA, April 5.—Both diplomatic action which was to have followed the signature of the protocol and the pourparles about disarmament have encountered difficulties. The Porte seems disposed to resent the steps taken by the powers in passing resolutions without its consent.

BRIGHAM'S TREACHERY.

The last Salt Lake Tribune declares that Lee, a subordinate priest, a mere Indian farmer, never could have organized the Mountain Meadows massacre and executed it without authority from those higher in power. It furnishes also these statements which throw further light on the relations of the Mormon hierachy to the atrocious deed:

The last interview which Rachel had with her liege lord, John D. Lee, was about two days before the execution, and this meeting was witnessed by an ex officer. Rachel shed a few tears, and cursed Brigham, the chief fiend of Mountain Meadows, most hotly, saying in her anguish, that she had not until then believed her John would be killed, because the Prophet had said to her, in the presence of Bishop Murdock, of Beaver, a few weeks before, these words: "Tell brother John

NOT TO DIVULGE ANYTHING,

If he stops in jail till the bedbugs carry him away. Tell him to be true to his covenants, and we will see that he is saved." With this assurance Rachel left the presence of the Prophet and came to the penitentiary feeling serenely certain that Lee would not be executed, and up to the time he was taken back to Beaver, they both expressed confidence in getting a reprieve on the strength of the confessions he had made.

To more fully impress the unregenerate Gentiles into whose hands Lee had fallen, with the fact that he had seen the error of his life and was thoroughly free from the meshes of Mormonism as a religion,

HE THREW OFF HIS ENDOWMENT ROBES

A few days before starting for Beaver, and declared himself an Apostate. But when he found there was no hope of a reprieve, he donned his robes again, and died with them on; which fact simply shows that while he denounced Brigham as a coward and a traitor, he, himself died firm in the faith, believing that, in accordance with the promises received in the Endowment House, the executioner's bullets would not penetrate his holy robes, or if perchance they should, his robes and temple name, whatever they may have been, would afford him a

SURE PASSPORT INTO HEAVEN.

While Rachel is still firm in the Mormon faith, she denounces Brigham most bitterly for sacrificing her John D. Lee, and carries no secret of her intention to shoot the Prophet of the Lord on sight. Rachel herself would make

A GOOD WITNESS AGAINST BRIGHAM,

As she knows better than any one on earth the whole extent of Lee's relations with that man after and in connection with the massacre. It may be impossible to adduce sufficient legal evidence to show that Brigham ordered the massacre, because Geo. A. Smith, the connecting link, is gone; but there is an abundance of testimony to show that Brigham is accessory after the fact, and Rachel is not the least of those living witnesses whose testimony would send the Mormon Prophet to the gallows.

Von Ranke, the German historian, has been decorated by the Emperor William with the Imperial Order of the Crown of the 1st class.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5.—The market opened this morning much weaker than at close last night, and prices generally settled back to lowest figures of yesterday. Best & Belcher was in but little demand at 24¼@25, and Gould & Curry was hardly wanted at 11. California was quiet at 4, Mexican very weak and dull at 3; Con. Va. was drooping at 41, with Savage at 5¼. Business was as usual dull in the board, and the call was finished in little more than half an hour. Homicide and Suicide.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5.—Captain A. F. Souther, master of a schooner in the Puget Sound trade, who, and it led his wife and suicided, at 1 o'clock last night, at No. 22 Natoma street near First. The officers who answered to the police call went to the premises, a one-story-and-attic frame dwelling, and at the end of the stairs, stretched at full length in the narrow hall, found the dead woman, and in the bed, in a rear room, found Souther with an IXL revolver in his right hand and a ball wound in his neck. The woman was found to have received a wound on the back of the head, on the right side, and in the chest. The woman was attired in her night clothing only, and her gown is powder-burned, which shows that the weapon was held close to her body when it was discharged. From the position of the bodies and condition of the room, it appears that after the husband and wife retired he, occupying the side of the bed nearest the wall, turned and fired at his wife, wounding her in the head. She arose and turned facing him, when he fired again, wounding her in the breast. She then passed out of the room and fell in front of the threshold of the door which is close to the stairs. He, after shooting her, placed the weapon towards his neck and fired, the ball ranging upwards. The other occupants of the house were asleep when the firing commenced, and know nothing of the circumstances or motives which prompted the act.

An inquest was held and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above.

Fatal Affray.

EUREKA, April 5.—From parties who arrived on last night's stage, we gather particulars of a shooting affray at Ward on Monday last which resulted in the instant death of a man named Chas. Bellows, also known as "Long Hair Charley." He and a man named Johnny Leonard were engaged in a game of poker, and a quarrel arose during the progress of the game. Leonard left the place where the game was being played, but shortly after returned armed with a revolver. The quarrel was renewed, and Bellows fell to the floor with two bullets through his body, expiring immediately. Leonard fired four or five shots, but only two took effect. After the shooting Leonard gave himself up. He claims to have done the shooting in self-defense. After inquest the body of Bellows was prepared for burial, and was left in charge of two friends of the deceased. During Monday night the watchers fell asleep, and on awakening were horrified to behold the corpse wrapped in flames, caused by the igniting of the bedding from the flame of the candles burning around the head of the corpse. The fire was extinguished as quickly as possible, when it was discovered the head and face of Bellows were badly disfigured, and portions of the hair entirely burned from the head. The funeral of Bellows took place on Tuesday, and yesterday Leonard was to have his examination. Deceased was a man about 40 years of age and well known.

SEATTLE'S BEGINNING.

The following is from the Seattle Intelligencer of the 21st inst.:

Mr. W. N. Bell tells us that it is just a quarter of a century ago to-day, since he landed with his family on the site of the now city of Seattle, the first white settlers. The pioneer party consisted besides Mr. Bell, of A. A. Denny, C. D. Boren, and John Low, with their families, and Charles Terry. They came over from Portland on the schooner Mary Taylor, whose captain brought her out on a trading venture from Boston, and was en route from Portland to Queen Charlotte's Island with an expedition of gold prospectors on board. Putting in to the Sound in hopes of filling out her crew at Olympia, the party whose mentioned landed on Alki Point, Nov. 13, 1851; where Messrs. Terry & Low took up a donation claim and shortly afterwards opened a store. Messrs. Denny, Bell and Boren prospected for claims along this shore, their party being joined at Alki by Dr. D. S. Maynard. The point where the town first started was then an island. This with the portion of the town site lying south of a cedar tree that then stood near the corner of Column's bank, fell to the lot of Dr. Maynard. The others located their donation claims as indicated on the plats, allowing a strip running down to the water on what is now Mill street to Mr. Yesler as a site for his sawmill, which was begun in October, 1852. Messrs. D. T. Denny and Lee Terry came to the Sound by the end route two weeks in advance of the others, and joined them at Alki. Mr. Bell moved over April 3, 1852, and with his family made the first settlement in this town.

The members of the Louisiana commission are McVeigh of Pennsylvania, Lawrence of Illinois, Hawley of Connecticut, Harlan of Kentucky, and Brown of Tennessee.

THE RAILROAD SITUATION.

PORTLAND, April 2, 1877.

To the People of Oregon: The paramount importance of the Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake railroad, to one can reasonably question.

To many it may be a matter of surprise that when Congress was appropriating freely of public lands in aid of railroads to the Pacific and elsewhere, this line should have been so little appreciated. But then it should be remembered that at that day Congressmen had but limited information respecting this country and its commercial ties. Everything of the kind was considered from a standpoint of overshadowing corporations, originating enterprises and schemes of speculation, between whom the Pacific railroads were meted out. Therefore that Congress should have committed errors and mistakes is not so surprising after all.

In the original grant to the North Pacific, an Oregon branch was provided for, to run down on the south side of the Columbia river to Portland, and the main line to cross the Cascade mountains to Puget Sound. The branch was but a means to an Oregon for omitting provision for the Salt Lake road. This was the first and great error. In 1870, by a joint resolution of Congress, the branch was transferred to run from Lake Pen d'Oreille across the Cascade mountains to Puget Sound, and the main line via the Columbia valley to Puget Sound and locate on the north side of the Columbia river. Thus Portland and Oregon got both roads. This was the second error and great wrong to Portland and Oregon. It must be apparent to any one, that if the amount of lands so granted to the North Pacific roads had been judiciously and economically applied, they would have been sufficient for the construction of both the North Pacific and Salt Lake roads; and we should have had, long ere this, a continuous line of railroad from Portland, Oregon, via Salt Lake to New York and other great cities of the United States. They were indeed great errors, and sad consequences have followed, not only to Oregon but to the whole Pacific Northwest.

These errors should be corrected, and the grants be readjusted. But however erroneous the grants, once made, they created a vested right, and could not be modified or corrected until the expiration of the time for the completion of the road. That being about to occur, application was made at the beginning of the last Congress for an extension of time for a period of eight years, for the completion of the Northern Pacific road. Then I proposed a correction and readjustment of the grants, and the retransfer of the branch grant to the Salt Lake road, as an amendment to the North Pacific bill. But owing to the Presidential and other complications, no decisive action was had.

COMPREHENDED THE SITUATION

Rightfully, there is no reason to be discouraged in our efforts for aid from Congress in the construction of our road. There is an improved outlook to-day, which should give us fresh courage in marshaling our forces for a decisive and successful campaign at the next session of Congress. The adjournment without passing the railroad bills leaves the way still open, with improved opportunity for prosecuting our proposed amendments to the North Pacific bill, to-wit:

1. The retransfer of the land grant from the north branch of the North Pacific to the Salt Lake line between the Columbia river and Salt Lake.

2. The building of the main line of the North Pacific from Portland to Umatilla, on the south side of the Columbia river, as originally intended by Congress, instead of on the north side as now located.

3. And in case the North Pacific company shall fail or refuse to build its road, then the Salt Lake company may do so, and be entitled to the land grant to that effect.

The retransfer of the land grant referred to, is on the theory of a readjustment of grants already made, taking them from needless, and applying them on more important lines, and not a new or further appropriation of the public lands, to which there is such strong opposition in the old States. As has been already shown, the branch grant was originally taken from Oregon, and so also on the north side of the North Pacific, an amount that are needless line; and the Senate bill, which failed with the adjournment of Congress, proposes its repeal for that reason, and in that shape it passed the Senate without objection. It was only necessary to go the length to recall by the Senate with the further provision, that in lieu thereof an amount of land equal to the grant so repealed be applied on the Salt Lake line.

This policy of readjusting grants already made—taking them from needless lines and applying them on more important line, better calculated to meet the necessity of the country, is wise and economical, and commends itself in the strongest terms to the most rigid opponents of further new grants of the public lands in aid of the construction of railroads. Congress, it is understood has been acting on this theory in relation to other roads, and in this case it is so reasonable as to leave little if any room for objection. The North Pacific could not reasonably object, for it is decided to use it, as was plainly indicated by the action of the Senate in its repeal. It is an appropriate provision to be inserted in the North Pacific extension bill, and then they would go through together.

THE EXTENT AND VALUE OF THE LAND GRANT.

So proposed to be transferred is about 400 miles long by 40 miles wide, embracing 16,000 sections, giving at $2 25 per acre, $12,800,000. This, with a very limited amount of local aid, would construct the road between the Columbia river and Salt Lake, and then the North Pacific being built between Portland and Umatilla, would make through connection. But these simple, just and important provisions can only be accomplished in connection with the extension bill of the North Pacific, and that bill, together with the Texas Pacific, having been lost by the adjournment of Congress, will come in anew at the next session, when we should be fully prepared to assert the rights of Oregon in the premises.

OUR LIGHEST AND ALMOST ONLY HOPE

Of aid from Congress in the construction of the Portland and Salt Lake railroad lies in the right, justice and equity of the readjustment and transfer of the land grant before referred to.

Experience and observation teaches that we cannot depend upon obtaining an original new land grant, nor hope for a subsidy in money. Both political parties are too strongly committed against further new appropriations of the public lands, or subsidies in money to railroads, to authorize us to hope for either. Those propositions have been made by us to Congress in every possible shape and upon the most liberal terms to the government, and under all the safeguards, which human skill could devise, but without effect.

The loan of government credit, similar to the Texas Pacific proposition, is impossible. For, unlike that, we have no long lines of completed road, and extensive land grants, to offer the government as security for the reimbursement of the loan.

IT HAS BEEN SAID WE MUST HELP OURSELVES.

How? State guaranty is out of the question without an amendment to the constitution, and it is doubtful if that could be obtained, whether public sentiment of the State would justify the expectation. To undertake the construction of any considerable length of railroad, depending upon cash subscription within the state, would be the height of folly. It is needless to argue this question. Every one knows that the people of the State are not prepared to entertain the proposition. Nevertheless

WE MAY HELP OURSELVES

To the extent of a thorough preparation for presenting our claims before Congress at the next session, for the readjustment and retransfer of the land grant before mentioned. In doing this we must take those measures at the point where we were last September, just before the meeting of the Legislature, when interrupted by a new company, known as The Oregon Pacific, then in anticipation that the North Pacific bill, pending in the House of Representatives of Congress, would come up for consideration at the session just closed, it was our purpose to obtain from the State legislature a emphatic endorsement of our proposed amendment to the North Pacific bill; and also obtain from the legislature a memorial on the question of our swamp land grant in such a manner as that, by the use of warrants on that fund receivable in payment for swamp lands, we could prosecute the road and 50 miles of road ready or use from each end, immediately available on the same. Pretty much the same plan as to swamp lands was adopted for the construction of the Sandy wagon road, under which it is now in course of construction.

Besides the actual advantage to the country in securing at least 100 miles of road, the impetus it would have given to the enterprise must have gone far in securing the subsidy once and final success, even though Congress should finally fail to respond to our just claims. To carry out these measures, a memorial to Congress and to the legislature was prepared, but owing to the pressure of other business and the lateness of the session to which it was proposed to present it, it was not done. Nevertheless, I am not without hope that the memorial will be presented to the next session of the legislature, and that the same will be acted upon favorably.

All who have a proper interest in the subscription of stock, the election of directors and general management of the enterprise, we find new articles of incorporation, and op

SOME SIGNS OF DISCONTENT.

It was hardly to be expected that the somewhat marked changes of policy which have been attempted and so far adhered to by the new administration could be completely effected without bringing out here and there expressions of disappointment and discontent. It would be useless to say that among all classes of Republicans there is thorough satisfaction with the President and his line of action. Not much is said, indeed, but criticism is not altogether silent. The echoes of half-suppressed dissatisfaction are not unfrequently heard; fears are expressed that a mistake has been made in regard to Southern matters, which will be discovered only when it is too late to correct it. To another class the new civil service regulations are not satisfactory, since they alike cut off the hopes of applicants for office and reduce the power of Congressmen among their constituents. These two points, the Southern policy and the civil service, include the principal matters of criticism, and though not much is said, it is easy to detect an uneasy feeling that would make itself heard if it could see the way through the controversy that would ensue in case open issue were made.

The selections made for the Cabinet were not relished by all; there are Republicans who look with impatience on the presence of Key, a Confederate officer, in one of the highest positions, and who are little less displeased that a man like Schurz should be at the head of another important department. And since it has become understood that there is not to be a general dismissal of officers now in the service, many men who cannot forget their own merit and their own labors in the party cause, and who see no chance for the reward which they supposed they had a right to claim and expect, naturally feel something of the injury of neglect; and the member of Congress who is unable to provide for his friends and so to strengthen himself, is not in every case in a perfectly restful state of mind. From sources like these there are ominous whispers that the new policy is "destroying the party." From other quarters are murmurs that "the party is sold out by politicians" to bring about Southern conciliation. By mail the report comes that the Southern Republican members of the House of Representatives, numbering twelve or fourteen, are resolved to stand aloof from the administration and oppose, and if possible defeat, the course which it is taking in regard to the settlement of pending difficulties in the Southern States; also that the few remaining Republican Senators from the South will take similar action.

This is one side of the case. The other side is less gloomy. The numbers who have grievances on account of the operation of the new civil service regulations are not very great, and their hostility, even if implacable, could hardly be fatal. As to the Southern question, candid and reflective minds will perceive little cause of alarm in the course that has been taken, for after all it is more a matter of necessity than choice. State governments cannot be sustained as formerly by the national arm. A time comes when there must be an end of such abnormal things. The President is guided by patriotic motives in trying to put political parties on a new basis and in different relations to each other in the Southern States. There may be mistakes, and perhaps results may not be altogether as expected and desired. But surely from a party point of view, if this alone were studied, it would be worth while to try a policy which may rehabilitate the Republican party in the Southern States. At present its fortunes in those States are at the lowest ebb, and experience has shown that the old course of politics can never improve them.

PRISON DISCIPLINE.

It is a common thing when a criminal is arraigned for his offences, or is expiating them under the requirements of law, to find many sympathetic natures who overflow with pity for him, and call the consequences that have overtaken him his misfortunes rather than just penalties for crime. An idea or sentiment like this runs through nearly all our methods of dealing with the criminal classes. Even the reformatory feature of prison discipline is often half spoiled by a sort of sympathy for the prisoner which conveys to him the impression that he is badly treated. All prison management should be such as to make it, in the greatest possible degree, undesirable for the offender to return. This, experience has shown, is not effected by cruel treatment or unusual punishment of any sort, but by making prisoners feel the force of a rigid discipline which controls all their movements, allows no relaxation of coercive and repressive treatment, and permits in nothing the exercise of the volitions of freedom. In the prison at Albany, N. Y., this course is steadily pursued, and with the most excellent results. The report says: "The prisoners are not allowed to lie around when there is no work to be done or work is over, or to dine boisterously together in large halls. They are made to feel at every turn that they are enduring punishment for crime." If penalties are to be deterrent, they must have this character; if confinement be not irksome to the offender he will not care for it, but will be back again, soon after his discharge, for the commission of another crime.

It is especially the case that short terms of imprisonment, such as are provided for the petty offenses (so called) punishable in the common jails, fail to accomplish any good purpose, and the same offenders are "sent up" again and again for short periods, not looking on confinement in this manner as punishment at all. Our jails are filled with a class who become known as professional offenders, and we proceed in a way that really fosters this description of criminal population. Insensible to disgrace, they are not treated to the only kind of punishment they really dread; we go on with a view of making them comfortable as we can, and raise an outcry against any penalties which are really painful. A recent thinker says on this subject: "Due restraint is still impeded in the name of liberty, and due punishment is averted in the name of merciful sympathy. A mawkish sentimentality is suffered to prevent the enforcement of really dreaded punishments, and the criminal population thrives under a mistaken system." These are perfectly true words. When grand juries are reporting on the condition of jails and expressing doubts whether the inmates are having sufficiently good accommodations for comfort and enjoyment therein, suggestions of this nature deserve their consideration.

ANTIQUARIAN LUMBER.

At last the Standard has struck a theme on which the Democratic editor of the old school is perfectly at home. That theme is a voice from a past that seems infinitely remote, and the wonder grows that it should have descended to our day. The "Resolutions of '98" have long been the property of antiquaries; their doctrines are as obsolete as the Ptolemaic cosmology, and are of no interest whatever except as curiosities of a bygone age. When South Carolina first proposed to secede on these resolutions, Jackson, who was then President, stopped her at once, declared that the nature of our Government is not that of a league, and completely overthrew all the pretensions founded on the resolutions, which were hardly heard of more until they were again invoked to justify secession in 1861. Yet the Standard will have it that Jackson believed in these resolutions and the Southern interpretation of them! Were this the fact he would have permitted the secession of South Carolina in 1832 as Buchanan did in 1861. The Standard's effort is to prove that the United States is not a nation but a league. It was a league under the old confederation, but the present Government was formed to escape the embarrassments and dangers of a league, and to effect as Washington said, the "consolidation of the Union."

The Standard to the contrary notwithstanding, there is no sort of difference in principle between the refusal of the House to pass the army appropriation bill at the recent session and the refusal of the same body to pass the like bill twenty years ago. And it is strictly true that the position of the two parties in relation to the question is exactly reversed. In each case the majority of the House attempted to put an unconstitutional limitation on the power of the President to command the army. In one case the demand of the House was the troops be withdrawn from the Territory of Kansas; in the other, that they be withdrawn from South Carolina. The fact that Kansas was a Territory, while South Carolina is a State, makes no kind of difference as to the main point. In either case it was a futile effort to deprive the executive of a constitutional power, or to control him in the exercise of it.

The late election showed more than ever before the difficulty of ascertaining the actual will of honest majorities; and the Springfield (Mass.) Union thinks that if government fails in the United States it will be from this cause. That paper goes on to show that there were seven States, Louisiana, Florida, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina and Connecticut, in which fraud or violence so perverted the election machinery as to leave the real will of the people in doubt, while Ohio and California narrowly escaped the same condition.

When the proposition to organize the commission for Louisiana was under discussion in the cabinet, it was opposed by Secretaries Evarts, Schurz and Key. The report is that they wished the subject to be dealt with by a more simple and direct method, which would have been tantamount to the abandonment of Packard by the administration.

Congress at the recent session appropriated $18,000 to investigate the grasshopper of Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas, with a view to ascertaining its origin, habits and the effects of his visitations; and the President is to appoint three entomologists to carry out the objects of the appropriation.

Geo. C. Gorham, Secretary of the Senate and an active Republican politician, is not pleased with the new policy. He says, if there is going to be a Republican party he is in it, but if there are two Democratic parties, he reserves the right to choose which one he will join.

Improvements.—Mr. C. M. Rohr, has just completed arrangements for the erection of a [illegible] story brick building at the corner of Front and Taylor streets. The ground belongs to the Davenport estate, and Mr. Rohr has leased the same for the term of ten years. The building is to be constructed of brick in a very substantial style, with cemented front. Its dimensions are: length 60 feet, width 23½, 14 feet in the clear. Messrs. Williams & Krumbein are the architects, and the contract calls for the completion of the building by the 1st of June, when it will be ready for occupancy. Mr. Rohr has leased the building for three years to two gentlemen who propose to engage in the general hardware business. The names of the gentlemen are Frank Dayton and Robert F. Tall. Mr. Dayton has been sojourning in the city for several weeks and his partner is at present in San Francisco making all the arrangements for shipping to this city a very large stock of hardware. Mr. Dayton will leave on the steamer to-morrow, but proposes to return about the middle of May. The new firm contemplate opening early in June.

Obituary.—All that is mortal of the late Miss Mesick, whose sad and sudden death at the residence Wednesday morning, has been followed to the Occidental Church yesterday to Lone Fir Cemetery, and laid to rest in the silent confines of the city of the dead. The funeral cortege was unusually large, being composed to a great extent of the most fashionable citizens of Portland. Rev. F. Pinsmer, rector of the Episcopal church, conducted the solemn funeral services at the residence of the sister of the deceased, in the absence of the rector of the church, in the absence of a former pastor of sorrowing relatives and sympathizing friends. At the close of the impressive services, the hearse was headed for the cemetery, followed by a long line of carriages, the following gentlemen acting as pall bearers: Hon. Joel Tuel, Capt. Ankeny, J. Goldsmith, A. W. Weidler, T. A. Davis, Mark A. Kinney, H. Hewitt, H. C. Leonard, J. D. Daffy and Isaac Linden.

Supreme Court.—Thursday, after the application for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of W. C. Mansell, indicted by the grand jury of the State Circuit Court for murder in the first degree, under the statute of Oregon, came on for hearing before Judge Boise and Woodward. The State was represented by District Attorney R. Stott and C. A. Bell, deputy district attorney. Mansell appeared by his counsel, Judge W. W. Page and S. Slocum. Arguments were heard pro and con, and the court after having duly considered the question, decided to grant the application. An order was issued, made returnable in $200 each, at which time the writ will be brought into court, and the State's witnesses are expected to obey subpœnas by Monday, if issued in custody.

Handsome Decoration.—The Chinaman who is a member of Trinity Parish has displayed some beautiful fresco work for the interior decoration of his Bazaar. They are placed in position for the Easter morning display. Each of the panels of the three-decker is filled in with delicate tracery work, with a cross or a crown in the corner, and the centre panel bears a gilt crown surmounted by a cross. The work is finely conceived and artistically executed. It adds greatly to the appearance of the chancel, lighter tints being given a coloring to the dark woods which at once prateful to the eye and suggestive of the appropriateness of the holy season.

Departure.—Col. John M. Wilson, engineer in this Northwestern district, returned to the city on Wednesday evening from a trip to the Sound. He went on board the Revenue Cutter, which has been detailed to convey the various engineering officers to their respective posts on the Pacific Coast, stopping at the principal stations along the southern coast, inspecting them and receiving the reports of the officers in charge. Before [illegible] Wilson will [illegible] Portland will [illegible] Minor, [illegible] Corps, [illegible] Mr. Thomas [illegible] Mr. Minor left this city for the East. Since that time he has been a resident of Rome, New York. Later [illegible] Mr. Thomas returned to Portland, [illegible] pursuing the [illegible] passenger business. He and friends will [illegible] many congratulations on his return, [illegible] at the same [illegible] in wishing him [illegible].

Call for It.—The WEEKLY OREGONIAN is ready and for sale at this office. The [illegible] number contains a great deal of personal interest to [illegible], contains [illegible] and [illegible] an unusually [illegible] confession of John D. Lee, closing chapters of the Mormon [illegible], also [illegible] of the South Carolina [illegible], also [illegible] from all parts of the [illegible], interesting editorial matter, State and [illegible] news, general [illegible] and local [illegible]. Only 10 cents per [illegible].

Beck, corner Alder and Front streets, to-morrow (Saturday) at 11 o'clock A. M. Those who have been engaged in circulating the petitions are requested to be present at that hour, as the committee desire to adjust them.

J. M. Anderson, O. H. Whitney, James Davidson, H. A. Kress, W. Byron Daniels, verification. J. A. Fletcher was elected Secretary and G. W. Durgin, treasurer.

The company has met with flattering success at Walla Walla and other points east of the mountains.

CAPITAL NOTES.

Under date of the 5th inst. we are in receipt of the following notes from our correspondent at the capital:

Hon. A. B. Meacham is, we understand, lecturing in California.

W. H. Frink, Esq., of The Dalles, is stopping at the Chemeketa hotel.

A brilliant masquerade is on the tapis for Saturday evening next at the residence of T. McF. Patton, Esq., under the auspices of his charming daughter Lillian.

Dan Cardwell, the night watch at the Commercial hotel, has been arrested on the charge of robbing the safe on Sunday night last. Other parties are supposed to be implicated, and startling developments are expected at the preliminary examination which takes place to-day.

The reunion at the residence of Jos. Holman, Esq., last evening, under the auspices of the Episcopal Church Guild, was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyable throughout. Music and elocution lent their charms, and the hours passed merrily along. The while the host and hostess were untiring in their efforts to make their guests feel welcome.

OREGON.

L. Paquet was elected director and William Gunsand clerk, at the Canemah school meeting.

John Myers was elected school director and H. J. Harding school clerk, at Oregon City, last Monday.

L. T. Barin was chosen mayor of Oregon City, by the Common Council of that place, on Wednesday.

The school apportionment for Marion county is now ready, being the largest ever made—$2 20 per scholar.

The Common Council of Salem is discussing the sanitary condition of the city and the necessity of a system of sewerage.

The Salem papers are having a quarrel over the city printing. "There once was two cats in Kilkenny, and each thought there was one cat too many."

A little son of Mr. Duffy, of Canemah was badly injured last week by the explosion of some gunpowder. The little fellow placed the powder in an oyster can and planted it in the ground and then set fire to it. The explosion knocked him over, badly burning his face, and it is doubtful whether he will ever be able to see again.

THE TERRITORIES.

Another case of smallpox has been reported in Seattle, in which the patient, a woman by the name of Elizabeth Ramage, died. It is believed this is the last of this disease at that place.

The Olympia Transcript says: "We learn that an extensive deposit of gypsum has been discovered up the Puyallup valley, near the coal region, of a very fine quality. We believe it to be the first deposit of the kind in the Territory."

A case has just been up in Justice Court, in Seattle, in which a lady was sued for passage money by a steamboat company; and resulted in favor of the defendant by giving her judgment for $30, and in addition taxing the plaintiff with the costs. The passage money was for times when she had been carried free heretofore.

There are some ten cities, aside from what are called miners' camps, in the Black Hills. The total population of the Hills is estimated by the best information to be about 10,000. Estimated amount of gold taken out about $750,000. Deadwood and Custer are the principal cities. Custer, at one time, had about 3,000 people, but has diminished somewhat.

Persons desiring the "process" can have it sent C. O. D. by express. The success that Dr. T. F. Wightman had a year since in Oregon in curing the diseases of the rectum will be his recommendation. Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, etc. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample bottles 10 cents; regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist. Agents, Crosse & Brigham, Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco.

MORE ABOUT THE WRECK OF S. S. WRIGHT.

Probable Murder of a Number of Her Passengers and Crew.

VICTORIA, B. C., April 5.—The most sorrowful page in the story of the wreck of the C. S. Wright, in 1874, remains to be written. The Colonist has a few additional particulars of the massacre of a portion of her passengers and crew by the Indians and the destruction of the Indian village. The officers learned enough to convince them that several of the shipwrecked persons got ashore and were murdered by the natives. The story is to the purport that a number of white men came ashore in a boat; that they had with them a box in which were many papers and a large sum of money in gold and silver. They bargained with a party of Kinlsgut Indians, who were bound to Victoria to take them to Port Rupert for seven dollars each. The white men were without arms, and when night came and all were asleep, the Indians murdered and threw the bodies into the sea after stripping them of everything of value. The money in the box was divided by the savages, who then came on to Victoria and spent the coin. An Indian woman says she picked up the head of a white man on the beach at Cape Caution a few months after the wreck and was told to put it down again, and say nothing about having found it. The officers found no property belonging to the Wright, except portions of the wreck which probably drifted ashore.

With respect to the destruction of the village, we learn that Sergeant Bloomfield landed with three officers from the Rocket, and demanded four men who are suspected of complicity in the murders. The Indians came out and refused to give up the men. The party then secured two of the suspected savages and made for the boat. They were fired on, but got back to the ship safely. Captain Harris then gave the tribe six hours in which to surrender the men. After the lapse of six hours, he extended the time three hours longer. He then fired blank cartridge and the Indians ran away. The village was then shelled and afterwards burned, and the two men secured. No one was killed.

A Guinea is Scarce Yellower

Than the complexion of a person becomes who omits to regulate his liver when that important gland grows neglectful of its secretive function. Moreover, the stomach under such circumstances becomes disordered, the bowels are constricted, pains in the side and between the shoulder blades are felt, the head aches, and the nervous system shares in the general derangement. This concatenation of evils is, however, easily remediable with that matchless regulating tonic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which insures the secretion and flow of healthy bile, acts gently but effectually upon the bowels, and removes every symptom of nervous or digestive trouble. The result is that renewed tone is given to the entire system; the sallow, haggard appearance of the face to which biliousness gives rise is superseded by the glow of health, and the frame gains in substance as well as vigor.

FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 6, 1877.

SOME SIGNS OF DISCONTENT.

It was hardly to be expected that the somewhat marked changes of policy which have been attempted and so far adhered to by the new administration could be completely effected without bringing out here and there expressions of disappointment and discontent. It would be useless to say that among all classes of Republicans there is thorough satisfaction with the President and his line of action. Not much is said, indeed, but criticism is not altogether silent. The echoes of half-suppressed dissatisfaction are not unfrequently heard; fears are expressed that a mistake has been made in regard to Southern matters, which will be discovered only when it is too late to correct it. To another class the new civil service regulations are not satisfactory, since they alike cut off the hopes of applicants for office and reduce the power of Congressmen among their constituents. These two points, the Southern policy and the civil service, include the principal matters of criticism, and though not much is said, it is easy to detect an uneasy feeling that would make itself heard if it could see the way through the controversy that would ensue in case open issue were made.

The selections made for the Cabinet were not relished by all there are Republicans who look with impatience on the presence of Key, a Confederate officer, in one of the highest positions, and who are little less displeased that a man like Schurz should be at the head of another important department. And since it has become understood that there is not to be a general dismissal of officers now in the service, many men who cannot forget their own merit and their own labors in the party cause, and who see no chance for the reward which they supposed they had a right to claim and expect, naturally feel something of the injury of neglect; and the member of Congress who is unable to provide for his friends and so to strengthen himself, is not in every case in a perfectly restful state of mind. From sources like these there are ominous whispers that the new policy is "destroying the party." From other quarters are murmurs that "the party is sold out by politicians" to bring about Southern conciliation. By mail the report comes that the Southern Republican members of the House of Representatives, numbering twelve or fourteen, are resolved to stand aloof from the administration and oppose, and if possible defeat, the course which it is taking in regard to the settlement of pending difficulties in the Southern States; also that the few remaining Republican Senators from the South will take similar action.

This is one side of the case. The other side is less gloomy. The numbers who have grievances on account of the operation of the new civil service regulations are not very great, and their hostility, even if implacable, could hardly be fatal. As to the Southern question, candid and reflective minds will perceive little cause of alarm in the course that has been taken, for after all it is more a matter of necessity than choice. State governments cannot be sustained, as formerly by the national arm. A time comes when there must be an end of such abnormal things. The President is guided by patriotic motives in trying to put political parties on a new basis and in different relations to each other in the Southern States. There may be mistakes, and perhaps results may not be altogether as expected and desired. But surely from a party point of view, if this alone were studied, it would be worth while to try a policy which may rehabilitate the Republican party in the Southern States. At present its fortunes in those States are at the lowest ebb, and experience has shown that the old course of politics can never improve them.

PRISON DISCIPLINE.

It is a common thing when a criminal is arraigned for his offences, or is expiating them under the requirements of law, to find many sympathetic natures who overflow with pity for him, and call the consequences that have overtaken him his misfortunes rather than just penalties for crime. An idea or sentiment like this runs through nearly all our methods of dealing with the criminal classes. Even the reformatory feature of prison discipline is often half spoiled by a sort of sympathy for the prisoner which conveys to him the impression that he is badly treated. All prison management should be such as to make it, in the greatest possible degree, undesirable for the offender to return. This experience has shown, is not effected by cruel treatment or unusual punishment of any sort, but by making prisoners feel the force of a rigid discipline which controls all their movements, allows no relaxation of coercive and repressive treatment, and permits in nothing the exercise of the volitions of freedom. In the prison at Albany, N. Y., this course is steadily pursued, and with the most excellent results. The report says: "The prisoners are not allowed to lie around when there is no work to be done or work is over, or to dine boisterously together in large halls. They are made to feel at every turn that they are enduring punishment for crime." If penalties are to be deterrent, they must have this character; if confinement be not irksome to the offender he will not care for it, but will be back again, soon after his discharge, for the commission of another crime.

It is especially the case that short terms of imprisonment, such as are provided for the petty offenses (so called) punishable in the common jails, fail to accomplish any good purpose, and the same offenders are "sent up" again and again for short periods, not looking on confinement in this manner as punishment at all. Our jails are filled with a class who become known as professional offenders, and we proceed in a way that really fosters this description of criminal population. Insensible to disgrace, they are not treated to the only kind of punishment they really dread; we go on with a view of making them comfortable as we can, and raise an outcry against any penalties which are really painful. A recent thinker says on this subject: "One restraint is still impeded in the name of liberty, and due punishment is averted in the name of merciful sympathy. A mawkish sentimentality is suffered to prevent the enforcement of really dreaded punishments, and the criminal population thrives under a mistaken system." These are perfectly true words. When grand juries are reporting on the condition of jails and expressing doubts whether the inmates are having sufficiently good accommodations for comfort and enjoyment therein, suggestions of this nature deserve their consideration.

ANTIQUARIAN LUMBER.

At last the Standard has struck a theme on which the Democratic editor of the old school is perfectly at home. That theme is a voice from a past that seems infinitely remote, and the wonder grows that it should have descended to our day. The "Resolutions of '98" have long been the property of antiquaries; their doctrines are as obsolete as the Ptolemaic cosmology, and are of no interest whatever except as curiosities of a bygone age. When South Carolina first proposed to secede on these resolutions, Jackson, who was then President, stopped her at once, declared that the nature of our Government is not that of a league, and completely overthrew all the pretensions founded on the resolutions, which were hardly heard of more until they were again invoked to justify secession in 1861. Yet the Standard will have it that Jackson believed in these resolutions and the Southern interpretation of them! Were this the fact he would have permitted the secession of South Carolina in 1832 as Buchanan did in 1861. The Standard's effort is to prove that the United States is not a nation but a league. It was a league under the old confederation, but the present Government was formed to escape the embarrassments and dangers of a league, and to effect as Washington said, the "consolidation of the Union."

The Standard to the contrary notwithstanding, there is no sort of difference in principle between the refusal of the House to pass the army appropriation bill at the recent session and the refusal of the same body to pass the like bill twenty years ago. And it is strictly true that the position of the two parties in relation to the question is exactly reversed. In each case the majority of the House attempted to put an unconstitutional limitation on the power of the President to command the army. In one case the demand of the House was the troops be withdrawn from the Territory of Kansas; in the other, that they be withdrawn from South Carolina. The fact that Kansas was a Territory, while South Carolina is a State, makes no kind of difference as to the main point. In either case it was a futile effort to deprive the executive of a constitutional power, or to control him in the exercise of it.

The late election showed more than ever before the difficulty of ascertaining the actual will of honest majorities; and the Springfield (Mass.) Union thinks that if government fails in the United States it will be from this cause. That paper goes on to show that there were seven States, Louisiana, Florida, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina and Connecticut, in which fraud or violence so perverted the election machinery as to leave the real will of the people in doubt, while Ohio and California narrowly escaped the same condition.

When the proposition to organize the commission for Louisiana was under discussion in the cabinet, it was opposed by Secretaries Evarts, Schurz and Key. The report is that they wished the subject to be dealt with by a more simple and direct method, which would have been tantamount to the abandonment of Packard by the administration.

Congress at the recent session appropriated $8,000 to investigate the grasshopper of Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas, with a view to ascertaining his origin, habits and the effects of his visitations; and the President is to appoint three entomologists to carry out the objects of the appropriation.

Geo. C. Gorham, Secretary of the Senate and an active Republican politician, is not pleased with the new policy. He says, if there is going to be a Republican party he is in it, but if there are two Democratic parties, he reserves the right to choose which one he will join.

FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 6, 1877.

CITY.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Mr. C. M. Rohr has just completed arrangements for the erection of a [illegible] story brick building at the corner of First and Taylor streets. The ground belongs to the Davenport estate, and Mr. Rohr has leased the same for the term of ten years. The building is to be constructed of brick in a very substantial style, with cemented front. Its dimensions are: length 60 feet, width 23½, 14 feet in the clear. Messrs. Williams & Krumbein are the architects, and the contract calls for the completion of the building by the 1st of June, when it will be ready for occupancy. Mr. Rohr has leased the building for three years to two gentlemen who propose to engage in the general hardware business. The names of these gentlemen are Frank Dayton and Robert F. Hall. Mr. Dayton has been sojourning in the city for several weeks and his partner is at present in San Francisco making all arrangements for shipping to this city a very large stock of hardware. Mr. Dayton will return on the steamer to-morrow, but proposes to return about the middle of May. The new firm contemplate opening early in June.

OBSEQUIES.—All that is mortal of the late Joshua Messick, whose sad and sudden death at his residence Wednesday morning, has been recorded in the OREGONIAN, was conveyed yesterday to Lone Fir Cemetery, and laid to rest in the silent confines of the city of the dead. The funeral cortege was unusually large, being composed to a great extent of the most respect business citizens of Portland. Rev. [illegible] F. Plummer, rector of the Episcopal church, conducted the solemn funeral rites over the remains at the residence of the grief-stricken widow, in the presence of a large number of sorrowing relations and sympathizing friends. At the close of the impressive services, the hearse was headed for the cemetery, followed by a long line of carriages, in which following gentlemen acted as pall bearers: Joseph Teal, Capt. Ankeny, B. Goldsmith, Hon. W. Welcher, T. A. Davis, Mark A. King, Hon. S. Soenck, H. C. Leonard, J. D. DuBois and Robert Linden.

APPLICATION GRANTED.—Thursday afternoon the application for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of W. C. Morand, indicted by the grand jury of the State Circuit Court for murder in the first degree, under the name of [illegible] Dan, came on for hearing before Judge [illegible] H. Woodward. The State was represented by District Attorney B. Stott and C. A. Ball, deputy district attorney. Morand appeared with his counsel, Judge W. W. Page and D. [illegible] Bagnell. Arguments were heard pro and con, and the court, after having duly considered the question, decided to grant the application. An order was issued, made returnable Friday at 2:30 o'clock, at which time the prisoner will be brought into court, and the State will be expected to show cause why Morand should not be held in custody.

HANDSOME DECORATION.—The Churchman says: "A member of Trinity Parish has illustrated some beautiful fresco work for the permanent decoration of the Rere-dos. They are to be placed in position for the Easter morning service. Each of the panels of the Rere-dos is filled in with delicate tracery work, with a monogram or a cross in the center, and the middle panel bears a gilt crown surmounting a gilt cross. The whole is finely conceived and artistically executed. It adds greatly to the appearance of the chancel, lighting it up and giving a coloring to the dark wood which is at once grateful to the eye and suggestive of reverence for the holy place.

RETURNED.—Col. John M. Wilson, engineer of this lighthouse district, returned to the city Wednesday evening from a trip to the Sound. He went on board the tender Shubrick, which has just completed her regular inspection along the northern coast. Colonel Wilson reports the various light stations in most excellent condition. After making some necessary stops at points along the lower Columbia, the Shubrick will steam away for San Francisco, touching at the several light stations along the southern coast, inspecting them and leaving the usual supplies.

BACK TO OREGON.—Many of our readers in Portland will doubtless remember Mr. Theodore Minor, who for some years was connected with the Surveyor-General's office of Hon. H. W. Corbett. About ten years ago Mr. Minor left this city for the East. Since that time he has been a resident of Albany, New York. A few days since Mr. Minor arrived in Portland, and has determined to take up his permanent residence. His old friends will join in hearty congratulations on his return, and at the same time join in wishing him prosperity.

CALL FOR IT.—The WEEKLY OREGONIAN is now ready and for sale at this office. The present number is one of unusual interest to [illegible], containing full and complete accounts of the course of Tweed, the sudden and unaccountable disappearance of ex-Mayor O. A. [illegible], confession of John D. Lee, closing chapter of the South Carolina imbroglio, also several telegraphic news from all parts of the world, interesting editorial matter, State and editorial news, correct commercial intelligence and local news. Only 10 cents per copy.

PORTLAND, April 2, 1877.

In conversation with Mr. H. C. Owens of this city, I learn very much interested in the late decision of Judge Hoxie concerning the claim of the State to the lands known as swamp and overflowed lands granted by Congress from time to time to Arkansas in 1850, the provisions of which, by act of Congress of 1860, were extended to Oregon and Minnesota.

It appears that these lands were never selected by the State until the year 1870, when the Legislature of the same year passed an act generally known as the "Swamp Land Act," which set forth in detail the manner in which they should be disposed of by the State, viz: by filing on the same according to legal subdivisions, and the payment to the State of twenty cents per acre, and as first payment on the $1 per acre. To the judgment [illegible] would have netted over the sum of two or three half million dollars from the sale of lands. Congress has, at various times granted the State large tracts of land to [illegible] various railroads [illegible] the case decided by Judge Hoxie goes to this extent: that grants [illegible] to these various corporations did not [illegible] swamp and overflowed lands previously [illegible] to the State, but were to the [illegible]

GENERAL NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

The Explosion—Startling Disclosures

New York, April 6.—The Times to-morrow will publish, from an authentic source, the true story of the explosion, revealing the fact that a diabolical crime was perpetrated. Orville D. Jewett was admitted to the firm of which his father, when alive, was a member six or seven years ago, simply because of the relationship. He had been somewhat wild and paid little attention to the business, which became not to have been to his taste. He had been absent last winter in Bermuda yachting and on his return, recently, expressed a desire to withdraw from the firm. His partners were willing to make any change in the business and opposed his retiring, but he persisted in his determination, and finally became so disagreeable that they consented to his request and agreed to pay him $300,000 for his interest. The necessary papers were drawn up and were to have been signed to-day. Young Jewett, probably crazed with liquor, came to the office with a band revolver and pistol. Some angry words passed, and he pulled the trigger, his pocket, threw it on the floor and the explosion followed. The clerk was killed, his legs were broken and he received other terrible wounds in the abdomen. He then threw the pistol and attempted to shoot himself throw in the head, but his aim was poor. He died this evening in the hospital. Another, who was injured by the explosion, is considered not to be in a dangerous condition.

The tragedy of the office of Messrs. Jewett, yesterday, is the absorbing topic of conversation. The thousands of people who crossed over morning from Brooklyn to New York by Fulton ferry, all return this morning by Burlington slip and landing for a walk up Front street, looking up to the second floor where the windows of the office in which the affair occurred. The building is closed and the police so recently yesterday to keep the throng pressing in, have withdrawn. The members of the firm bear the very highest possible reputation not only for probity and honor, but also for sobriety of character. Orville, who was at school in Connecticut, is never spoken of as a drinking man. He never drank to excess, and was always temperate. He refused to be interviewed to-day, and would not, he said, have his own misfortune [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] Unquestionable [illegible] ing in this city and [illegible] good offices of the [illegible]
